

Requiring all broadcasters to record program material from am to 10pm seems to be an over-reaction.

If the Commission is concerned about content material, the Commission needs to issue easy-to-understand rules. After issuing these easy-to-understand rules, the Commission needs to enforce the rules.

Requiring all stations to record program material will require thousands of dollars to be used to purchase the equipment and then store the material for the amount of time the Commission deems necessary.

Perhaps requiring stations found to be in violation of the to record program material is appropriate. Requiring all stations to record program material is not.
